Walter & Samuels finishes $3m capital improvement at 214-224 West 29th St.

MANHATTAN, NY Walter & Samuels has completed a $3 million capital improvement program at 214-224 West 29th St., a commercial office building located between Seventh and Eighth Aves. in Chelsea. The pre-war building comprises 200,000 s/f of office space across 17 floors and several ground-level storefronts.

According to Walter & Samuels chairman David Berley, the property is being repositioned to meet the changing face of the neighborhood and demands among the tech and creative sectors for office space in Chelsea.

The transformation includes a complete cleaning of the building's street-side façade, which features intricate masonry details, elegant setbacks and four unique stone gargoyle handles. The building was designed by architect Henry Oser and was one of the city's original fur buildings along a corridor that today continues to be dotted with furriers.

The building took back ground-floor retail space in order to expand and modernize the lobby.
